Article 6- CERTIFICATION

The Founders of SAFE affirmatively believe that “certification” should be indicative of an individual possessing the necessary skills and knowledge to work in the field of Forensic Document Examination; and that “certification” by SAFE should represent the highest standard of skills and knowledge in the industry. The founders have determined that the acquisition of skills, knowledge and the “ability to do the job” can and most often do come from a variety of different learning methods. The SAFE Board specifically rejects the notion that only one method of training or education type is superior to others. SAFE promotes and recommends all varieties of learning methodologies, and offers a receptive hand to virtual learning environments as well as brick and mortar classrooms and laboratories. To this end, a point scheme shall be the vehicle to obtaining certification. The point scheme shall award or attach points to various types of learning and training methods, including distance learning, virtual classroom training, apprenticeship training, accredited college and university programs and other as is approved by the Board of Directors.

A total number of points shall elevate a member to certification eligible status. Upon application, a candidate having met all other requirements shall be a Candidate for Certification. An application for certification must be completed by the candidate and submitted to the Certification Chairman with the required payment set by the Board of Directors.

Subsequent to certification, a certified member shall undergo periodic proficiency testing once testing becomes available. All certified members shall meet established minimum benchmarks for proficiency. The Standards Committee shall determine these standards when proficiency testing of an appropriate nature is available and approved by the SAFE Board of Directors.
